The Five Senses
TECHNIQUE

This is a grounding technique that helps you focus more on your five senses. This can help you practise becoming more aware of the present moment.

5 THINGS YOU CAN SEE.

Look for 5 things you can see around you. This could be more obvious objects like a chair, or things you don't often notice like a dent in the wall.

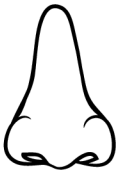

4 THINGS YOU CAN FEEL.

Try to notice 4 things you can feel. This could be things like how your legs feel on a chair, or the wind on your skin.

3 THINGS YOU CAN HEAR.

See if you can now notice 3 things that you currently hear. It could be a more obvious sound, like someone talking in the distance, or it could be something subtler like a low fan noise from a laptop.

2 THINGS YOU CAN SMELL

For this you could notice smells you would usually ignore, pleasant or unpleasant. If outside you may notice the scent of freshly cut grass.

1 THING YOU CAN TASTE

Now try to notice something you can taste. You could take a sip of a drink and really notice the flavour.

Adapted from:
© PositivePsychology.com
C, Ackerman. (2017, Jan 18). 21 Mindful Exercises & Activities for Adults. PositivePsychology.com https://positivepsychology.com/mindfulness-exercises-techniques-activities/#4-mindfulness-activities-for-groups-and-group-therapy